Understanding Inclusion for Children

Primary Community Meeting

On February 4, 2019, Ms. Caroline Baxter, the Head of Learning Support at English College of Prague, delivered a two-hour workshop on Understanding Inclusion for Children.

Focused on how to help serve children with learning disorders, this workshop offered interactive exercises, theory and practical tips. Children all have their own learning styles and experiences. When working with children with learning disorders, we often need to change our approach or adjust expectations. At the forefront of this is ensuring that we focus on best serving the needs of each child with the respect and compassion they deserve.

The workshop included several interactive exercises so that adults could experience the challenges of learning disorders and try to imagine different ways that children could deal with these challenges. Key learning disorders were also defined and discussed with specific ideas for student support given.
